Dear Valued Customer,

Thank you for choosing L&B Global Cargo Services. We have successfully received your payment, and your cargo booking is now confirmed for our upcoming chartered flight. Your Cargo Booking Confirmation/Receipt is attached to this email.

Please review all cargo details carefully, including sender's Name and Contact Details, Receiver/Consignee Name and contact details, cargo route, flight/dispatch date, total weight, number of packages, cargo description and booking/reference number. If you notice any incorrect information, please contact us immediately so we can update the details before cargo acceptance and departure.

Important Cargo Reminders

- Please ensure all items are properly packed, sealed, labelled, and ready for transport.
- The sender is responsible for providing an accurate description of all items contained in the package.
- Please do not include prohibited, dangerous, restricted, undeclared, or unlawful goods.
- Food, plant, animal, medicinal, commercial, or other restricted products may be subject to additional customs, biosecurity, permit, or import requirements.
- All cargo is subject to applicable aviation security screening, customs and biosecurity requirements.
- Additional charges may apply if the actual weight, dimensions, contents, handling requirements, customs clearance, storage, duties, taxes or other government charges differ from the information provided at the time of booking.
- L&B Global reserves the right to refuse cargo that does not meet airline, aviation security, customs, biosecurity, or regulatory requirements.

For cargo being sent to Australia, please ensure the receiver/consignee is available and provides any documents or information required for customs or biosecurity clearance. Please keep your Cargo Booking Reference and payment receipt for your records.

For any questions regarding your cargo booking, documentation, packing, customs requirements, or collection arrangements, please contact our team before the cargo acceptance deadline.

Thank you for choosing L&B Global.

Kind regards,
L&B Global
Chartered Flight & Cargo Team

CUSTOMER TERMS & CONDITIONS

These Terms and Conditions apply to cargo booked with L&B Global Pty Ltd & DrukAir for transportation between Paro, Bhutan and Perth, Western Australia, including cargo collected or received through authorised cargo partners.

By booking, paying for, or handing cargo to us or our authorised agent, the sender ("Shipper") confirms that they have read, understood and accepted these Terms and Conditions.

1. Cargo Service
The cargo service operates in connection with scheduled/chartered air services between Bhutan and Australia.

Acceptance of a cargo booking does not constitute an unconditional guarantee that the cargo will travel on a particular flight. Available cargo capacity may change because of passenger numbers and baggage, aircraft payload, fuel requirements, weather, operational conditions, safety requirements, aircraft configuration, load control or airline instructions.

Cargo is always subject to final acceptance by L&B Global & Drukair, the airline, ground handler, customs, security and other relevant authorities.

2. Cargo Drop-Off
All cargo must be delivered to the designated cargo drop-off location within the required acceptance period advised for each flight. Customers must provide their cargo booking/reference details when dropping off their shipment.

2.1 Bhutan – Paro Cargo Drop-Off

SD Plaza, 5th Floor, Opposite to Om Bakery, Thimphu Town
For cargo bookings, drop-off assistance and enquiries, please contact:
+975 17426913
+975 77264922
+975 17578995

Customers must ensure that all cargo is properly packed, labelled and accompanied by the required sender, consignee and shipment information before acceptance.

2.2 Australia – Perth Cargo Drop-Off
Level 5, Suite 32/25 Walters Drive, Osborne Park, WA, Australia
For cargo bookings, drop-off assistance and enquiries, please contact:
+61 424 919 833
+61 451 106 077

Customers must ensure that all cargo is properly packed, labelled and accompanied by the required sender, consignee and shipment information before acceptance.

2.3 Drop-Off Conditions
Cargo must not be left unattended at either location. A shipment will only be considered received after it has been accepted by an authorised representative and the applicable booking/reference details have been recorded.

Acceptance at the drop-off location does not guarantee uplift on the scheduled flight. Cargo remains subject to final weight and measurement verification, security screening, documentation requirements, customs and biosecurity requirements, airline acceptance and available aircraft cargo capacity.

This is consistent with the underlying L&B Global Cargo Services, which requires cargo to be correctly packaged and labelled, have accurate weight and dimensions, complete documentation, satisfy aviation security and export requirements, and be acceptable for entry into the destination country.

3. Sender's Responsibility
The sender is responsible for providing complete and accurate information about every shipment, including:

- sender's full name, address and contact details;
- receiver's full name, address and contact details;
- accurate description of every item;
- number of packages;
- value of goods;

- country of origin where required;
- invoices/receipts where required;
- permits, certificates or approvals where required; and
- any information necessary for customs, security or biosecurity clearance.

The underlying agreement similarly requires manifests to identify the shipper, consignee, cargo description, pieces, weight, dimensions, declared value, origin and relevant permits/certificates.

Customers must never describe goods simply as "personal items", "gift", "food", "clothes" or "miscellaneous" where a more accurate description can be provided.

4. Inspection and Opening of Cargo

All cargo may be inspected, opened, screened, X-rayed or otherwise examined where required by L&B Global, its authorised agents, the airline, aviation security, customs, quarantine/biosecurity or other government authorities.
The customer authorises such inspection by submitting cargo for transportation.

5. Packaging

All cargo must be properly and securely packed for air transportation.
Packaging must be capable of protecting the goods during normal handling, loading, unloading and transportation.

Fragile goods must be adequately protected and clearly identified.

L&B Global may refuse poorly packed, leaking, damaged, contaminated, unsecured or otherwise unsuitable packages.

The reference agreement expressly requires cargo to be correctly packaged and labelled and to have accurate weights, dimensions and complete documentation.

6. Weight and Dimensions

Customers must declare the approximate weight and dimensions when making a booking.

The final charge will be calculated using the applicable chargeable weight.

Where applicable, the chargeable weight will be the greater of:
Actual Gross Weight, or Volumetric Weight.

Final weight and dimensions may be re-measured at the cargo facility.
This is consistent with your existing pricing provisions, which use the greater of actual gross weight or applicable volumetric weight.

If the verified weight is greater than the amount originally declared or paid for, the customer must pay the difference before cargo is accepted for carriage.

7. Payment
Cargo charges must be paid in accordance with the price quoted at booking.

Unless expressly agreed otherwise, cargo will not be considered fully confirmed until the required payment has been received.

Additional charges may arise for services including customs clearance, customs examination, security screening, quarantine/biosecurity inspection, treatment, storage, special handling, permits, return freight, redelivery or destruction.

These charges are not automatically included in the normal air-cargo freight rate. Your underlying agreement expressly separates customs duties, GST, biosecurity, quarantine, storage, broker and government charges from the standard cargo price.

8. Customs, Duties and Taxes
The sender and/or receiver is responsible for all applicable:

- Customs duties, GST/taxes, import/export permits, customs broker charges, biosecurity/quarantine charges, inspections, treatments, storage charges and other government or regulatory charges.
- Payment of freight charges does not guarantee customs or biosecurity clearance.
- For Australia, imported goods may require a SAC or formal Import Declaration depending on value and circumstances, and permits may be necessary for restricted goods.

9. Australian Biosecurity
Australia has strict biosecurity requirements.

Food, plants, seeds, timber, bamboo, animal products and other biological materials may be prohibited, require permits or be subject to inspection or treatment.

Customers sending goods Bhutan → Australia must declare all such products accurately before cargo is accepted.

Australian authorities recommend checking the Biosecurity Import Conditions system (BICON) before sending relevant goods.

10. Prohibited and Restricted Goods
Customers must not send prohibited, illegal, undeclared or dangerous goods.

Your existing agreement already prohibits accepting dangerous, prohibited, restricted, live-animal, perishable and other special cargo without the necessary prior approval.

Restricted goods will only be accepted where all necessary permits, licences, declarations and approvals have been obtained and L&B Global has expressly agreed to accept the shipment.

11. Dangerous Goods
Dangerous goods must not be included in ordinary cargo without prior written approval.

Examples include explosives, fireworks, compressed gases, fuel, flammable liquids, certain chemicals, corrosive substances and certain batteries/battery-powered equipment.

Australian aviation rules prohibit or restrict numerous dangerous goods aboard aircraft, including certain lithium batteries and flammable liquids.
If unsure, the customer must disclose the item before dropping it off.

12. False Declaration or Undeclared Items
The sender is responsible for the accuracy of the cargo declaration.

If prohibited, restricted, dangerous or undeclared goods are discovered, L&B Global may refuse transportation and may hand the shipment to the appropriate authority where legally required.

Any resulting storage, inspection, penalties, treatment, return, disposal, destruction or other costs may be charged to the sender/receiver where permitted by law.

13. Cargo Capacity
Cargo capacity is limited and may vary for each flight.

Passenger safety, passenger baggage and aircraft operational requirements take priority.

Therefore, even after booking, cargo may be reduced, deferred or transferred to a subsequent available service where required for operational, payload, safety, regulatory or airline reasons. Your agreement expressly recognises this possibility.

14. Flight Delays, Changes and Cancellations
Flight schedules may change because of weather, technical matters, airport restrictions, regulatory decisions, operational requirements, aircraft availability, force majeure or circumstances outside our reasonable control.

Where cargo cannot travel on the intended flight, we will work with the customer to arrange the next appropriate available solution.

15. Customs/Biosecurity Delays
L&B Global cannot guarantee the time required for customs, security, quarantine or biosecurity clearance.

Any government inspection, treatment or document requirement may delay cargo release.

16. Loss or Damage

Customers must ensure goods are appropriately packaged. Responsibility for cargo will generally depend upon who has custody of the cargo when the loss or damage occurs. Your existing agreement follows this same custody-based approach and provides that air-carriage claims are dealt with under the airline's applicable conditions of carriage and applicable law.

Any visible damage, shortage or irregularity should be reported immediately and supported with photographs, receipts/invoices, cargo reference/AWB and other reasonable evidence.

17. High-Value Cargo and Insurance

Customers should inform us before sending high-value goods.

Ordinary freight charges do not automatically provide full replacement-value cargo insurance. Your existing agreement specifically recommends appropriate cargo insurance for high-value shipments.

Customers should arrange appropriate insurance where necessary.

18. Uncollected Cargo

The consignee must collect cargo within the period advised following clearance and release.

Storage or other charges may apply where cargo is not collected on time. Where cargo remains uncollected for an extended period, it may be dealt with according to applicable customs, warehouse and legal requirements.

19. Right to Refuse Cargo

L&B Global reserves the right to refuse cargo that is:

- Prohibited or illegal; unsafe; improperly packaged; incorrectly declared; leaking or contaminated; missing required documentation; outside permitted dimensions/weight; suspected of containing dangerous goods; unacceptable to the airline or ground handler; or unable to satisfy customs, biosecurity, aviation-security or destination-country requirements.

20. Customer Acceptance

By submitting cargo, the customer confirms:

I declare that the information provided about my shipment is true and complete. I have disclosed all contents of the shipment and have not included prohibited, illegal, undeclared or unauthorised dangerous goods. I understand that my cargo may be inspected or screened and that acceptance is subject to airline capacity, security, customs, biosecurity and applicable laws of Bhutan and Australia.

21. Additional Charges – Customs, Clearance & Disposal

In addition to the air cargo/freight charges paid at the time of booking, the following charges may apply upon arrival of the cargo at its destination:

1. Clearing Agent Fee

The Sender and/or Receiver (Consignee) is responsible for paying any applicable clearing agent, customs broker, handling, or clearance service fees required to release the cargo. These charges may be payable upon or after the cargo arrives at the destination.

2. Customs Clearance, Duties & Taxes

The Sender and/or Receiver (Consignee) is responsible for all customs clearance charges, import duties, taxes, levies, inspection fees, quarantine/biosecurity charges, and other government charges, where applicable. The amount will depend on the type, quantity, declared value, origin and applicable customs assessment of the goods and will generally be determined by the relevant authorities at the destination.

3. Disposal, Destruction or Abandonment Costs

If any cargo is rejected, prohibited, restricted, contaminated, unclaimed, abandoned, ordered for destruction, or otherwise required to be disposed of by customs, biosecurity, quarantine or another competent authority in either the origin or destination country, all associated costs will be the responsibility of the Sender and/or Receiver (Consignee).

This may include disposal or destruction fees, transportation costs, storage charges, inspection fees, treatment costs, administrative charges and any other expenses incurred in dealing with the goods.

Important: These charges are not included in the standard air cargo/freight rate unless expressly stated otherwise. L&B Global/Avelora Trade & Cargo will not be responsible for customs duties, government charges, clearing agent fees, storage fees, inspection fees, or disposal/destruction costs imposed by third parties or government authorities.
